30 years Lieven Piano Foundation

The International Piano Foundation Theo and Petra Lieven of Hamburg was founded in 1993 with the aim to pass the art of piano playing down from generation to generation. Our teachers (Karl-Ulrich Schnabel, Rosalyn Tureck, Alicia de Larrocha, Dmitri Bashkirov, Leon Fleisher, Charles Rosen, Murray Perahia, and many others) supported us in this. Today, we are proud that our early scholars are now our teachers. Who could teach Schnabel's pedal technique better than those who learned it from Schnabel themselves?

Today the foundation is located in the center of Vienna. Under the direction of its artistic director Alon Goldstein, the foundation invites eight highly distinguished young pianists to spend eight weeks in the city of Vienna each summer, to receive free lessons as well as performing opportunities throughout the city.

Alumni include well-known pianists such as Piotr Anderszewski (scholarship holder 1994), Yulianna Avdeeva (2008-2012, 1st prize Chopin Competition 2010), Ingrid Fliter (2000-2001), Kiril Gerstein (2002-2004), Stanislaw Ioudenitch (1995 -1996, 1st prize Van Cliburn Competition 2001), Alexei Volodin (2001-2003, 1st prize Géza Anda Competition 2003).

The current teachers include Ferenc Rados, Eliso Virsaladze, Andreas Staier, Tatiana Zelikman, Alfred Brendel, and Arie Vardi among others, and alumni such as Alexei Volodin, Ingrid Fliter, Davide Cabassi and Alon Goldstein.

The foundation celebrates its 30th anniversary in 2023. On this occasion, several concerts and master classes are held at the Wiener Musikverein. Two concerts in the Brahms Hall on June 10th with Jean-Marc Luisada, on June 11th with François Dumont; two master classes in the Steinerner Hall on June 10th with François Dumont, on June 11th with Jean-Marc Luisada and, as the crowning event, both Brahms piano concertos with Alexei Volodin as soloist and the Slovak Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Daniel Raiskin on June 18th in the Golden Hall of the Musikverein.

François Dumont

French pianist François Dumont's international career has been launched by his success in major international piano competitions winning prizes in the Chopin Competition, the Queen Elisabeth Competition, the Clara Haskil Competition, the Montecarlo Piano Masters. He has been nominated for the Victoires de la musique, a major French classical music event. He has received the Prix de la Révélation from the Syndicate of Music Critics in France. His recording of the complete piano music of Maurice Ravel (Piano Classics) has received both critic (FFF Telerama, 5 Diapason) and public acclaim. His recent recording of Mozart Concerti K.271 and K.466 with the Orchestre Symphonique de Bretagne have been praised for their "clarity of elocution", their "ideal sense of equilibrium" and "delightful classicism".

He appears as a soloist with orchestras such as the Cleveland Orchestra, the Mariinsky Theater Orchestra, the Montecarlo Philharmonic, the Warsaw National Philharmonic, the Orchestre national de Lorraine, the Orchestre National de Lille, the Orchestre National d'Ile-de-France, the Orquesta Nacional de Colombia, the Orchestre de Chambre de Lausanne, the Tokyo Symphony with conductors such as Jesús Lopez-Cobos, Antoni Wit, Arie van Beek, Philippe Bender, Rani Calderon, David Reiland, Stefan Sanderling, Alexander Sladkovsky.

François Dumont was fourteen years old when he entered the Paris Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique in Bruno Rigutto's class. He later studied at the prestigious Lieven Piano Foundation and the Lake Como International Piano Academy with artists such as Dmitri Bashkirov, Leon Fleisher, Murray Perahia, William Grant Naboré, Menahem Pressler, Andreas Staier and Fou Ts'ong.

His debut in the Paris Philharmonie took place in February 2019 with Schumann piano concerto.

François Dumont was a scholar of the Lieven Piano Foundation from 2011-2013 where he himself now gives masterclasses in the Musikverein.

Overview

Frédéric Chopin's four ballades are single-movement pieces for solo piano, composed between 1831 and 1842. They are considered to be some of the most important and challenging pieces in the standard piano repertoire. The term ballade was used by Chopin in the sense of a balletic interlude or dance-piece, equivalent to the old Italian ballata, but the term may also have connotations of the medieval heroic ballad, a narrative minstrel-song, often of a fantastical character. There are dramatic and dance-like elements in Chopin's use of the genre, and he may be said to be a pioneer of the ballade as an abstract musical form. The four ballades are said to have been inspired by a friend of Chopin's, poet Adam Mickiewicz. The exact inspiration for each individual ballade, however, is unclear and disputed. Though the ballades do not conform exactly to sonata form, the „ballade form“ created by Chopin for his four ballades is a variant of sonata form with specific discrepancies, such as the mirror reprise (presenting the two expositional themes in reverse order during the recapitulation). The ballades have directly influenced composers such as Franz Liszt and Johannes Brahms who, after Chopin, wrote ballades of their own.

Maurice Ravel's Gaspard de la nuit is one of the most important piano works of the 20th century and constitutes the height of the extension of the pianistic playing techniques and tonal possibilities which was already begun by Chopin and Liszt in the 19th century. The three movements Ondine, Le Gibet and Scarbo are based on poems by Aloysius Bertrand which Ravel put in front of each of the three pieces. It combines instrumental music with literary models.

Debussy's La plus que lente, „The more than slow“, is a waltz for solo piano written by Claude Debussy in 1910 shortly after his publication of the Préludes, Book I. The piece debuted at the New Carlton Hotel in Paris, where it was transcribed for strings and performed by the popular „gipsy“ violinist, Léoni, for whom Debussy wrote it (and who was given the manuscript by the composer).

Ravel's La Valse has been described as a tribute to the waltz; the composer George Benjamin, in his analysis of La valse, summarized the ethos of the work: „Whether or not it was intended as a metaphor for the predicament of European civilization in the aftermath of the Great War, its one-movement design plots the birth, decay and destruction of a musical genre: the waltz.“
